

I was born in Los Angeles to two Canadian parents. My father was born in Winnipeg and moved to Vancouver when he was very young and was raised there. My mother was born and raised in Edmonton. After my brother was born in Vancouver, my parents decided to move to the land of opportunity and settled in Los Angeles, where my sister and I were born.

I was your typical boy growing up in Los Angeles watching baseball, basketball and football. When I was about 13 my father took me to an LA Kings game to watch the newly awarded franchise play. After that first game I was hooked on hockey and it immediately became my favorite sport! Don't get me wrong the other sports (baseball, basketball, football) are cool, but it's not HOCKEY! When I turned 16 and could drive I started taking the guys I grew up with to the LA Kings games and they also become huge hockey fans. I was a diehard LA Kings fan and have followed them for over 40 years – which is how long it took them to finally win the Stanley Cup. I've been in Las Vegas for about 15 years now and LIVE in Summerlin. I literally live across the street from the new training facility. I can't wait to watch them train when there is public access. I feel like a kid in a candy store. I'm TOTALLY READY to root for the new boys in town!!

I couldn't be happier, as a REALTOR SPECIALIZING IN SUMMERLIN for 15 years. Real estate is my third and final career. Prior to that, I received an opportunity to manage radio stations, which I did for about 7 years. And prior to that, I practiced as a CPA for over 10 years in California. In addition to that, I also taught accounting part-time at the college level for three and a half years.

Go Vegas Golden Knights!
